

50 Delivery Systems for Learning

The following list identifies ways people like to learn. There are clear generational and geographical preferences. The implication is that everything we do needs multiple ways of accessing learning.

Phone

Texting
Apps
Conference Calls

Computer (1,3)

Videos
On-line webinar
Social Media
Blogs
E-books
Pinterest
Websites

Arts

Music
Dance
Theater
Visual Arts

Individual (1,2,3,4)

Reading Books
Book Groups
Internships
Mentors
Coaches
Observing Others
Self-Selected Sm Groups
Spiritual Guide
Family Systems Work
Conversations

Large Groups (2,4,5)

Seminars
Conferences
Presenters/ Speakers

Going Away (2,4)

Retreats (Maybe Silent)
Cultural Immersions
Field Trips
Service Projects
Training Events
With a Trusted Group
Synod Assembly
Theological Conference

Face to Face Community (4,5)

Networks
Story Telling
Role-Playing
Train the Trainer
Expert coming to us
Small Covenant Groups

Practices that Matter (1,2,3,4)

Space to Create
Train, Lead, Evaluate, Lead
Supported by Others
Invited into Leadership
Accompanied by Pastor
Permission to Fail
Safe Place to Lead
Chance to Risk New Ideas
Leadership as a Youth

KEY: # indicates what we have learned about preferences for learning. Are we right?

1. Younger Leaders
2. Older Leaders
3. Houston
4. Brenham